JAFFNA: Northern Sri Lanka is a world apart from the rest of the country, being closer to southern India has retained a unique character and culture as mixtures of Indian Hinduism and Sri Lankan Buddhism. It is the opportunity to explore a region that comes out of 20 years of isolation and although a little far from the center of the island it is worth the trip to visit the fascinating town of Jaffna, Tamil culture, Hindu temples such as Shree Nagapooshani Amman and Buddhists like the Kadurugoda, places where the tourist masses have not yet arrived. Also, the inheritances of the conquests are equally striking to visit as the fort of Jaffna built by the Dutch 1680 and the churches OLR and Santa Maria.

NAGADEEPA (40 Km / 2 Hrs): Nagadeepa (Nagadipa) or Nainativu is one of the islands belonging to the cluster of islands in the Palk Bay off the Jaffna Peninsula. Access to Nagadeepa is from the village of Kurikattuwan (Kurikadduwan) of the island of Punkudutivu which is a 20 minute boat ride over the Palk Bay. The sandy island of Nagadeepa, sheltered by Coconut palm groves as well as Palmyrah palm trees, features two main jetties set apart by no more than 300 meters. One of the jetties brings into the immediate vicinity, the Hindu Kovil at the beach while the other leads straight to the Nagadeepa Viharaya, which is also of proximity of the beach. The boats reaching the island opt for either of the two depending on the passengers brought in from Jaffna: should there be more Hindus, it will be moored to the jetty close to the Hindu Kovil; should there be more Buddhist passengers, the boat would be moored to the jetty closer to the Buddhist temple.

KANESANTHURAI (25 Km / 1 Hrs)

Kankesanthurai colloquially known as KKS, is a port suburb, fishing division and resort hub of the Jaffna District, Northern Province, Sri Lanka.
